- FCCLA chapters promote family and consumer sciences education – personal growth, relationships, apparel and design, food and nutrition, child development, housing, consumerism and resource management.
- FCCLA chapters emphasize preparation for jobs and careers in family and consumer sciences occupations – culinary arts, food science, education, hospitality, apparel design and merchandising, and interior design.
- FCCLA helps youth deal with the real issues that face teens and families today:
 - relationships
 - self-esteem
 - care for children and the elderly
 - drug and alcohol abuse
 - nutrition and physical fitness
 - peer pressure
 - employment
 - teen pregnancy and parenting
 - money management
 - community service
- FCCLA is the only national student organization with the family as its central focus. Through FCCLA you'll meet new people . . . learn new skills . . . lead the way for your family and peers as you share your knowledge.
